IN NO DANGER.

Senator Chandler's Opinion of Portsmouth Defences.

City Not in Any Great Danger of a Bombardment.

The Washington correspondent of the Manchester Union says:

The congressional delegation are in constant receipt of letters from New Hampshire asking about the coast defence and the probability of attack by the Spanish fleet. Portsmouth is known to have but inadequate defence and to be a coaling station of great importance, but its location is against probability of attack, as it is too far up the coast to be of easy access.

It is conceded here, that the Spanish fleet will find it difficult to carry a sufficient amount of coal to make the ocean voyage and then be in fighting trim after its arrival off the American coast. And on this account the danger to northern coast cities is much lessened.

I asked Senator Chandler what he thought regarding the chances of the fleet coming to the New England coast this summer, and he replied in substance, that he thought there was about one chance in a hundred. He thought if the fleet did come it would not train its guns on houses like the Westworth or the Farragut, and there was not one chance in a hundred that any sea side resort or hotel would be molested. Said he:

"It is not in accord with modern warfare wantonly to destroy such buildings. Our fleet will not destroy similar buildings in either Spain, Cuba or the Philippine islands. It is highly probable that in the case of invasion, the Spanish fleet would come for coal, and would undoubtedly seize all coal found at the pockets of heavy dealers. Probably the big breweries would also be taken as well as all provisions and implements of war. But I think the town would not be destroyed but would be allowed to pay a ransom and an escape."

"There is not one chance in a hundred that the Spanish fleet will come near Portsmouth, and in speculating upon the chances of invasion it must be borne in mind that a Spanish fleet would arrive off the New England coast almost destitute of coal, and the United States vessels, which are on the close lookout for approaching Spanish ships would at once engage in open battle with the intruder, and probably destroy it before any damage could be done to the New England coast."

"A Spanish vessel could not count upon twenty-four hours of existence, and the damage it could do in that time would not pay for the risk taken. Such an act would be nothing more than that of a Malay running amuck; doing some damage, but being killed like a mad dog at the end of his race. So far as danger of invasion is concerned, I think the people had better go to the seashore and enjoy themselves as usual."

A Day and a Night

Mr. Charles Hoyt will be in the city when his new comedy, "A Day and a Night" is presented at Music hall Friday evening. His personal attention to his production for '98 is in itself a guarantee of its excellence. The comedy will deal with the doings of a gentleman from New Jersey during "A Day and a Night" in the metropolis. It goes without saying that this gentleman has a lively time of it and the audience, no doubt, fully shares with him the hilarity of the occasion. Mr. Hoyt's comedies may properly be termed musical farces, and special attention has been devoted to the musical numbers of his latest effort. The staging and costuming are in line with the liberal policy pursued by the firm of Hoyt & McKee. The company has been selected with the greatest care and includes among others Otto Harlan, Georgia Caine, William Devore, Villa Knox, Law Bloom, Nellie O'Neil, W. H. Corrie, the Clayton sisters and Thomas Evans.

Died in Brooklyn

Charles H. Osgood, formerly of this city, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Osgood in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Monday evening, May 2nd, aged thirty-four years and seventeen days. The deceased has been a great sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism for several years, and although suffering constantly from excruciating pain, bore his suffering with great fortitude and patience. He was possessed of a kindly, genial disposition, and had many warm, fervent friends.

A Tip For the Girls

For their own sweet peace of mind, we hope that the sweethearts of the departed militia boys bound their cavaliers by vows of fidelity that none but a fickle-hearted swain would break, however great the provocation. For it must be remembered that the Cuban girls are the most alluring in the wide, wide world. Their eyes are large, dark, velvety, moist, swimming in an ether of seduction; their feet are the most perfectly arched; their hair is of that peculiar black that wears no lustre; their—perhaps it would be better to leave something to imagination. Happily (or unhappily) the supply of Cuban divinities is limited; and then again, the boys may not get as far as Cuba. However, we have felt it our duty to put "the girls they left behind them" on their guard, so that they may, in the letters to the absent swains, make assurance doubly sure and take a bond of fate.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

After a girl has once heard that she has been called "fascinating," she gets an idea that she can make a man say anything to her she wants to.

The girl that wears a man's collar and tie ought to be made to marry the man who wears knee stockings and round garters with long trousers.

A woman is always willing to keep her husband's secret from every woman in the world but herself.

Rachel probably always threw it up to Jacob that he once wanted her bad enough to work 14 years for her.

Every girl has a foolish idea that she can take away some man's headache just by laying her cool hand on his forehead.

When a man sees a girl look at him so he can see all the whites of her eyes, he can be pretty sure she is trying to throw her whole soul into her gaze.—New York Press.

OFF TO CAMP.

Company A Departs This Morning
For Concord.

The Soldier Boys Are Given a Most Enthusiastic Send-off.

No New Hampshire company ever went to the front with a more inspiring send-off than was accorded Company A this morning when they left to go into camp at Concord, preparatory to being turned over to the United States officers.

The wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts of the men began to gather early about the armory on Court street, and by eight o'clock they were packed in a dense mass about the building. All around were tearful little groups, in the center of which, in most cases, was the mother of one of the brave boys who was soon to leave her.

A few minutes after eight o'clock the company marched out of the armory and were greeted with a lusty cheer, women with tears in their eyes waved flags and handkerchiefs.

A few returned to their homes after the company filed out of the armory, but the most made a rush for the depot where one of the largest crowds ever gathered there on any occasion was waiting to say good-by and God-speed to the departing men.

The company was escorted to the depot by Marshal Entwistle and a platoon of police. On arriving there the men quickly boarded the extra cars attached to the regular 8:30 Concord train. The women laughed and wept by turns and it is safe to say that none of the boys went away without their share of feminine consolation.

At exactly 8:30 the train pulled out amid ringing cheers, waving hands and the shrieks of whistles and clanging of bells from the locomotives in the yard.

Of the men taken by Captain Pope, about thirty-five were new recruits and fifty regulars. The latter looked like veteran fighters in their blue uniforms, heavily furnished knapsacks, with blankets and pouches completed and with their rifles and business-like equipments.

Company A was organized in this city November 8, 1894, in old Franklin block. They started out with 38 men under the following officers:

Captain, Will H. White;
1st Lieutenant, Thomas R. Wilson; 2d Lieutenant, Frank Faulkner.

CROSSFIXION OF CHRIST.

Death on the Cross Was a Most Terrible Form of Torture.

"Crucifixion was a terrible death writes the Rev. Abner H. Bradford, D. D., in The Faith of Our Forefathers. It was reserved for offenders of a seventh class and never used for a Roman citizen. The hands and feet of the victim were nailed to the wood and a kind of rude seat was provided—just enough to prevent the weight of the body from tearing through the flesh. The exact spot where Jesus was crucified cannot now be determined. Golgotha was probably some skull shaped hill outside the city wall. 'Fifteen or a strange process' I went I its way—the condemned with their crosses on their backs, the hard hearted rabble making fun of them as they passed. The strength of Jesus failed before the destination was reached, and another was compelled to carry the cross for him. The crucifixion, like all others, was cruel and barbarous in the extreme. The executioners were Roman soldiers, but a host of Jews feast their eyes on the hideous sight. 'Some agony was the protection against his disciples in sight, and only two or three friendly women near—one of them his mother—Jesus passed the last hours of his earthly life. Those who suffered by crucifixion sometimes lingered three or four days—Jesus lived about five hours. While hanging on the cross he spoke seven times. Soon after the cross was raised, looking over the course and brutal soldiers, and the mistake in minutes who had bound him to that hour he uttered a prayer which has probably made a deeper impression on the world than any other single prayer ever uttered—'Father, forgive them for they know not what they do.'"

Hairpins Seen on the Sidewalk.

"It seems to me," said a man who has occasion to go about town a good deal, "that the hairpins of the city in which one may not come across just hairpins. One may see them lying on the sidewalk in Fifth avenue and in remote side streets alike. The first impression that one gets from these scattered hairpins is of the common use of the hairpin. The common kinds of hairpins such as are seen lying about in this manner must be made and sold in tons. The next impression from them that a man gets is that they must be the number that a woman carries in her hair, for though he is a man, a hairpin sent about about he does not meet women with their hair hanging loose. Their hair is fastened with some way that they don't use one. New York N. Y."

How About Camp?

One of the questions that is now revolving in the minds of the the brigade officers of the New Hampshire National Guard and stirring the anxiety of the First and Second regiments is whether Governor Ramsdell will cancel the annual encampment of the militia. There are some who think the governor will rescind the encampment orders sent out because of the crippled condition of the brigade and the expense attendant upon the week to camp.

Supporters of the War Revenue Measure Subjected to Attack.
Washington, May 4.—Mr. Lewis, during the consideration of a private bill, addressed the house yesterday, cautioning it against freely removing disabilities from those who participated in the civil war. He also spoke in denunciation of men and corporations who would seize upon the existence of war as an opportunity to form trusts and use the emergency to secure government to secure improper profits, and referred to members who "spoke magnificently and voted ungraciously." Mr. Lewis referred to a statement from Mr. Cummings in speaking of his vote on the revenue measure, that now was a time to place country above party, and was ready to put country above the Democratic party, but not above the Republican party.

TYPICAL EGYPTIAN VILLAGE.
Huts of Sun Dried Mud, Without Ventilation.
R. Talbot Kelly, the English artist, has written for The Century an article entitled "An Artist Among the Fellahs." Mr. Kelly says of a typical Egyptian village:
Built entirely of sun dried mud, it is small, low built, from considerations of economy and safety. Join one another whenever possible. Narrow and tortuous lanes, left at haphazard, form the only thoroughfares, in which at first appears to be a huge mound of mud, surmounted by heaps of cotton and derra stalks, which serve the dual purpose of terminating the lanes and of being a windbreak. The lanes are narrow, and the houses are built up abruptly in a neighbor's courtyard and forcing one to retrace his steps as he tries again. Experience has taught me that it is never wise to assume that the street in the direction of first suggestion. It is often safer to start the other way and trust to the winding of the path to bring one out somewhere near the desired spot.
As a rule, the villages have the appearance of fortifications, the outside walls being frequently without doors or windows, and the lanes of the village terminated in massive wooden doors, which are usually closed at nightfall and guarded on the inside by the village guffrah, or night watchmen.
Each "house" has usually one door, opening into the lane, small and low, and the few windows, if provided at all, are merely slits in the mud wall, innocent of glass or shutter, but ornamented with a lattice of split bamboo, placed crosswise during building. Ventilation there is virtually none, the smoke of the fire of dung or corn cobs finding its egress by the door and well high above the inhabitants, which include not only the family, but chickens, turkeys, pigeons, goats and whatever live stock the inhabitants possess.
Every effort to exclude air seems to be made, the houses being so low to the breeze, and the streets so narrow to allow of any air circulation. The roofs, covered with piles of rubbish for fuel, afford accommodation for a second installment of goats, pigeons, cats, and especially dogs. One wonders how life can be supported in such conditions, yet the people are in good condition and healthy, living their lives in the fields and returning to their houses only to eat and sleep. Insect life naturally abounds the Egyptian life particularly being a prodigy of manly vigor and activity, but the fact that the houses are built like Egyptian life is a prodigy of manly vigor and activity, but the fact that the houses are built like Egyptian life is a prodigy of manly vigor and activity.

SLASHED WITH AN AX.
jealous New York Shopkeeper Murders His Children.
AFTERWARDS GASPED HIS THROAT.
Crime Committed During Absence of Wife and Mother.

New York, May 4.—Jacob Gramm, a small shopkeeper, 50 years old, murdered two of his children, mortally wounded a third and inflicted fatal wounds on himself. The children are Ella, 5 years, John, 7 years, and Frank, 12 years of age. Ella and Frank are dead; the father and John are in a hospital.
During the absence of his wife, whom he had sent to hunt for a new flat, Gramm told a woman who had been left in charge of the children that he would take them upstairs and put them to sleep. Gramm's son Edward, returned from school at 3 o'clock and went to awaken his father and the children. The chamber door was fastened, and when he climbed the escape he discovered the butcher through a window. Gramm lay on the floor, and the three children upon a bed.
The children had been frightfully slashed with an ax. Their father had used a breadknife to slash his throat. A note found beneath the bloody ax, written by Gramm, indicated that his act was caused by jealousy of his wife. His friends state that he was temporarily deranged by intense suffering from rheumatism.

DEEP MACHINATIONS.
Spanish Distrust the Honesty of British Intentions.
WOULD PROTECT MANILA CHINESE
Offer Scornfully Rejected When Submitted to Madrid.

Madrid, May 4.—The official account of Captain General Augusti's communication to the office of the British consul at Manila to place the Chinese in the Philippines under the protection of the British flag says: "Captain General Augusti urged him to say that he would take the Chinese subjects in the Philippines under the British flag in order to safeguard their lives and property. The captain general added that a number of rich and influential Chinese at Manila had assured him that they were satisfied with the protection of Spain. The secretary of the colonies replied that there was no reason to suspect the protection of the United States as a nation comes from the American homes, and it is at the homes that the flags ought to be flying." "The low administered at Manila has been acknowledged by the Spanish government to be terrible and devastating," says The Advertiser. "One object lesson of the strength and power of American arms has been given. Will any further lesson be necessary?"

ROSLIND IN ARDEN.
Pipe little birds, go pipe, pipe, pipe.
Pier Rosalind for love in pipe.
So make the woods of Arden ring,
With notes sweet as flowers in spring.
For 'neath the greenwood tree she sits,
And how thoughts blossom in her eyes.
In fashion like a man arrayed,
To hide the beauty of the maid,
She wears Orlando's words of bliss,
She charms like him, she drinks his kiss,
And moves the swelling lips of Pan
To pipe the loves of maid and man.
Her bosom trembles like a flower
By soft winds blown in gentle power,
And blushes play about her face
Like roses in a pleasant place.
And rapturous blinks pipe to the wind,
"O'er my name sweet as Rosalind."
—Charles Lander in American Queen.

WHAT BOSTON EDITORS SAY.
Boston, May 4.—The Post holds it to be "a sensible thing for Spain, now that her Asiatic squadron is wiped out of existence, to end the war at once by according to all the demands of the United States and agreeing to pay whatever reasonable indemnity may be called for."

Portsmouth Yacht Club

A meeting of the Portsmouth Yacht club was held in Good Templars' hall on Tuesday evening and considerable routine business was transacted.

In the absence of Commodore Durcan, Vice Commodore Holman took the chair.

Four new members were voted in, making the total membership about sixty.

The following gentlemen were appointed a membership committee by the commodore: Messrs. Joseph Conner, John W. Kelley, Calvin P. Moon, Chamney B. Hoyt and Bert J. Rowe.

A number of rules in the constitution were amended and the following committee was appointed to select a proper penant for the club: Messrs. H. P.
Montgomery, John Washburn, James
Dow, Charles Drowne, William Cotton,
Charles Meloon and John Robinson.

After the meeting Chief Drowne served a fine chowder, with all the fixings, in the banquet hall above.

Dynamic Guns

Active preparations are on foot to protect Portsmouth harbor and navy yard,
as well as the entire New England coast.
Three large pneumatic guns will be placed on the coast, at Jervis' Point and Gerrish Island. They will be of the same pattern as are in use at Sandy Hook off New York. Mines will at once be placed in the harbor, while a patrol of monitors will keep a sharp lookout for Spanish vessels.

Portsmouth Woman Injured

Mrs. Smart of Portsmouth, who drove to this city this afternoon, met with an accident on Stark avenue, where the horse suddenly became unmanageable. She was thrown out and one arm was painfully injured. George O'Neil, who took in the situation, rendered valuable assistance.
The team was not seriously damaged.—

Capt. Jacques Abroad

Capt. W. H. Jacques, who is a summer resident of Little Bear's Head, is now in Europe, negotiating with the foreign governments, for the building of the Holland submarine torpedo boats. Captain Jacques is president of the Holland company and is confident that the new submarine boat will make a revolution in marine warfare.

of Stephen B. Oliver, who died in New York city, April 30th, were brought to maiden name being Florence Stokell.

ing nets Constable Hodgkins journeyed

menced his warfare against the unarmored canines. It behooves all those

EARLY MORNING FIRE
Farm Building of George S. Webber
Totally Destroyed
Fire destroyed one of the farm buildings on the Webber farm situated just beyond the Boston & Maine overhead bridge on the Greenland road, early this morning.
Word was sent to this city that the building was burning and there was danger of the house and the other outbuildings catching fire.

Chief Randall ordered the out of town alarm pulled in and then sent the chemical with steamer two and hose carriage to the scene of the conflagration. The chemical arrived on the scene first but too late to be of service. The fire caught in a two-story work building or carriage house from an incinerator lamp.

The flames quickly spread and when discovered the whole interior of the building was one mass of flames. The neighbors responded at once and formed themselves into a bucket brigade and with strenuous efforts succeeded in saving the large barn in close connection with the burning building.

Mr. George S. Webber, owner of the place, was badly singed about the head in saving a few of the articles in the building but lost all his farming tools.
The building that was destroyed was worth about $800, fully covered by insurance.

SHOWN ABOUT TOWN

Guests of General Gilman Marston
Command Entertained

General H. L. Street and wife, General
S. P. Hamilton and wife, General
F. R. Bogie, all of Washington, D. C., and Colonel Walter French and wife, and Colonel Goddard and wife, of the Department of Massachusetts, who were the guests of General Gilman Marston command at his sixth annual May Party and ball on Monday evening, were taken in charge by the comrades of the command on Tuesday and driven about the city and shown the various points of interest. The visitors were extremely pleased and interested in what they saw at Hon. Frank Jones' farm. The Washington party said that nothing in the famous botanical garden at the national capitol compared in beauty and luxuriance with Mr. Jones' palm house display. The visitors were also taken to the Wentworth house, the new fortifications at Newcastle and later were shown many of the old houses in the city. They left on the 5:38 o'clock train for Boston, expressing themselves as highly pleased with their visit to New Hampshire and their treatment here. The Countess de Sausi Saint Angel and Lieutenant Luis Perez de Tenu were also the recipients of much social attention on Tuesday, and left for Boston on the Flying Yankee.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Last Evening

Mr. John Hayes the well known war veteran and rigger at the navy yard met with an accident Monday evening, which may prove serious. While coming down the steps at his home on Gates street, he slipped and was thrown headlong to the ground a distance of six feet, landing on the back of his head, rendering him unconscious. He was taken into his home, and Dr. Jenkins summoned, and upon an examination found no bones broken, but he fears Mr. Hayes' spine is badly injured, as the unfortunate man is unable to move his head, without great pain. Tuesday night Mr. Hayes was a trifle better but has not as yet regained the use of his neck or shoulders.

"Civ's" Opinion

This is what Congressman Sulloway told a Manchester newspaper man yesterday concerning Spaniards in general. "If you wish for my personal opinion, I will say that I believe that for the last 100 years every breathing Spaniard has been overdue in hell, and I believe they should be aided by the United States, as they were by Commodore Dewey, to make as close connections with that place as possible. They are a band of outcasts and outlaws."

Portsmouth Men at Manila

Portsmouth people naturally take keen interest in the movements of Admiral Dewey and his brave warships.
Every despatch about the doings of his sturdy collection of sea fighters is eagerly received here, and with good reason.

In the first place the admiral married a Portsmouth lady, the daughter of Governor Goodwin. Then again, a son of Admiral Carpenter of this city is serving with the Asiatic squadron, with which Admiral Dewey has knocked the big Spanish fleet into a cocked hat, or more properly, into Manila bay.

Other Portsmouth naval men are also with his ships. Among them are Lieut.
William Winder, and Capt. Asa Walker, who is in command of the gunboat Concord.

It was quite generally agreed on Monday evening that the citizens of Portsmouth ought to cable congratulations and thanks to Admiral Dewey for his brilliant action in the Philippines.

The Naval Reserve

A meeting of the committee on state defence was scheduled to be held in the mayor's office on Tuesday evening, but as only three members showed up Mayor Tilton postponed the meeting.

A telegram was sent to Mr. Deatur during the day, asking him if he could give a definite answer as to whether he would take command of the naval militia being formed here. Up to a late hour on Tuesday evening no reply had been received and it is thought that he is on his way home. If this is the case he will arrive in Portsmouth some time today or tomorrow.
